BATTLE MAY FORCE U. S. TO INTERVENE IN CUBA

BELIEVE GOVERNMENT TO FOLLOW THIS PLAN IF PEACE ENVOYS FAVOR REBELS.

HAVANA, Sept. 24.—While Secretaries Taft and Bacon, the peace envoys from the United States, are hopeful of success as a result of the conference to be held to-day, there is a persistent rumor that the Cuban government, rather than accept peace terms which it believes are favorable to the insurgent forces, is preparing to precipitate a battle and thus force armed intervention on the part of the United States. This impression is general, and the ease with which it could be carried out lends it force.

The loyal and rebel forces are to-day camped at Guanajay close beside each other and ready to fight at the drop of the hat. It is an easy matter for the government to order its troops to attack the rebels, although the latter are much stronger. This would bring about a resumption of hostilities which would bring the American marines into the fight and bring about the intervention the government is said to be looking for before the decision of the mediators can be rendered.

The forces of American bluejackets and marines are all for such a move. The nine warships now in this harbor have landed a lot of stores, tents and ammunition, the cars are ready to take them about the city, the plan is prepared and in less than an hour after word that fighting has begun again is received this force would be thrown about Havana.

Despite the armistice which is now in effect, a clash between government troops and Pino Guerra's force is threatened to-day. General Avolos, with 400 cavalry and 300 infantry, arrived at Guanajay yesterday noon, having come by train from Pinar del Rio to Artemisa, prepared to proceed to Camp Columbia, near Havana. He is now at Maried.

FUTURE BRIDE SURE TRACY IS BIG CUP WINNER

"Dare Devil" to Wed Miss Collins, Who Assumed Name of "Miss Taylor."

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—That "Daredevil" Joe Tracy, winner of the Vanderbilt elimination race, wasn't "daredevil" enough to be engaged to two girls at the same time became known to-day. This followed the announcement at the race by a "Miss Millicent Taylor, a school teacher of Wichita, Kan.," that Joe would marry her if he won. Later Tracy said that he was to marry Miss Fanny Collins of No. 81 Perry street.

To-day Miss Collins said that she and Miss Taylor were one and the same.

"I didn't want to bother my brother, for whom I keep house, with all the notoriety," she said. "You see, I wanted to cheer Joe to his best efforts, so I had to be in the public view at the traces.

"That's why I took that name. I'm sure Joe will win the big cup race, and I shall surely be there to see him do it. No, I won't say, now, when the wedding will be."

KILLED BY A BLOW DELIVERED IN RING

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 24.—In a ring fight at Woodlawn, Saturday night, between Richard Munson, white, and a negro named Robinson, Munson was fatally hurt. The knockout blow came in the ninth round. The injured man died this morning. It is the opinion of the doctors that a blood clot had formed on Munson's brain from a blow on the back of the left ear.

Both fighters worked at the steel plant and an enmity as to who was the better man existed. The men agreed to fight it out for a purse.

45,000 SEE PICTURES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Moving pictures showing the life of Uncle Sam's bluejackets are being used in inland cities to secure recruits for the navy with much success. At Lincoln, Neb., a recruiting party with the exhibit drew audiences of 15,000 for three successive nights.

FIRST FROST PREDICTED FOR TO-NIGHT

Weather Man Warns Farmers and Florists to Look Out for Cold Snap.

The first frost of the season is due to-night, according to the weather man.

In giving out his forecast to-day he said that it would be fair and somewhat cooler, with frost to-night, except on the coast. To-morrow would be fair and cool and light northerly winds would prevail, he predicted.

The scheduled frost would not touch Boston or other places on the coast, but the inland districts are likely to be nipped, the forecaster declared. Farmers and florists are warned accordingly.

The thermometer dropped to 40 degrees last night, and is expected to do the same to-night. This cool wave is borne here by winds from the Great Lakes. A warmer spell is expected in two or three days.

THE WEATHER.

Fair and somewhat cooler, with frosts, except on the coast, to-night. Tuesday, fair and continued cool. Light northerly winds.

High tide—3:27 a. m., 3:52 p. m.

Sun rises—5:33; sets 5:40.

Moon sets—10:12 p. m.

FOSS RALLIES TO-NIGHT.

Rallies in the interest of the candidacy for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor of Eugene N. Foss will be held to-night in Wardsworth Hall, Winthrop and in Music Hall, East Boston. Mr. Foss will speak at each place.

After Storming Jail Near Atlanta To-day MOB HANGS A NEGRO

While Troops Keep City Quiet, Rioters Lynch Man Imprisoned in Suburbs.

Governor Will Proclaim Martial Law if Disorders in Georgia's Capital Are Renewed.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 24.—At an early hour this morning a mob of 200 men stormed the jail at East Point, a suburb, five miles from Atlanta, took out a negro named Zeb Long, who had been arrested Sunday for carrying a loaded gun, strung him to a telegraph pole and shot him to death.

Long had resisted arrest, and had been parading the streets with his gun.

Militia in Control.

This city is to-day controlled by the State militia and the police as a result of the race riots. Governor Terrell has not yet declared martial law. If the scenes of Saturday night are repeated he stands ready to issue such an order. The force of militia now here numbers 1,000, and the entire police force of the city has been called out.

The riots began Saturday, and were waged with vigor. Ten lives have been lost and over forty persons have been injured. The whole city is in confusion, and negroes are fleeing by hundreds. Conductors and motormen refuse to operate street cars through the sections thickly populated with negroes because they fear a repetition of the attacks made Saturday night.

Keep Streets Clear at Night.

All citizens, white and colored, have been requested by Mayor Woodward to keep off the streets at night. All saloons were closed to-day by his order, and boys under twenty-one years of age must keep off the streets under penalty of arrest.

The race war now in progress is the result of repeated attacks on women by negroes. The first serious trouble began when a white woman was shoved from the sidewalk by a negro. About the same time a black woman addressed an insulting remark to a white man, and he administered punishment.

A crowd collected immediately, and from this insignificant beginning a mob of huge proportions was raised. The fighting occurred in various sections of the city, but the residential quarter has thus far been free from trouble. The police have been massed in that section, and houses where women are quartered without male attendants are securely guarded.

SEPARATE RACES, SAYS EDITOR, IN APPEAL TO NORTH

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 24.—John Templegraves, the brilliant editor and orator, has issued a signed statement addressed to the press of the North on the Atlanta race riot and its causes, which reads, in part, as follows:

"The Atlanta race riot is due to the cumulative provocation of a series of assaults by negroes upon white women, which, in number, atrocity and unspeakable audacity, are without a parallel in the history of crime among Southern negroes. There have been eleven assaults or attempted assaults within the past seven weeks. Of these fiends only four have been apprehended, and seven have escaped scot free.

Guard Women at Home.

"It has been a reign of terror for our Georgia women. They have been trembling prisoners in their homes, and their husbands, sons and brothers have been held in the necessity of guarding them unceasingly.

"Men do not dare to leave their families after nightfall. The whole section has been in a state of siege and apprehension, which has been growing more intolerable.

"The silliest man in the South is the time-serving statesman who declares that there is no race problem, and the question, if left alone, will settle itself.

Racial Antagonism Grows.

"The race question is more impending, antagonism deeper between the races. The hope of a permanent agreement has slender and threatening no wthan it has been in twenty years. The tension is sharper, the foundations.

"The horror of Saturday has doubtless left a blot on our civilization, but it will clear the atmosphere and keep the negro in order for five years to come. The present riot is at an end. The city is quiet to-day and the military is on guard. The negroes are whipped and humbled and no danger is apprehended. But the trouble is likely to be reopened with another wave of crime next Summer.

"How can you help us? By giving two paragraphs to the denunciation of rape, where you give one to lynching.

Separate the Races.

"What is the ultimate end? Separation of the races, the only possible logical inevitable solution. These two opposite antagonistic races can never live together in the same government under equal laws—never.

"Help us to sparate."

WANTED IN CROCKER CASE, CRONAN GIVES UP

TWO MEN NOW IN CUSTODY AS RESULT OF THE STORIES ABOUT JURY BRIBING.

John W. Cronan, a plumber of No. 21 Palmer street, Roxbury, who with Matthew F. Killion, a painter of Saratoga street, East Boston, has been sought by District Attorney Moran, following the charge that two of the jurors in the contest over the will of Uriel H. Crocker accepted bribes, to-day walked into police headquarters, sought out Chief Watts and said:

"Here I am. I understand you have been hunting for me to arrest me."

Killion is already under arrest and Cronan was at once placed in custody of inspectors. The warrant under which both arrests were made was on suspicion of being able to tell something about the alleged bribery of the jurors in the will contest.

Later to-day warrants for the arrest of Cronan and Killion on charges of receiving bribes will be sought in the Municipal Criminal Courts.

BREAKING OF MILL DAM DOES $25,000 DAMAGE

BUILDINGS WRECKED IN PATH OF ANGRY FLOOD AT PLYMOUTH.

PLYMOUTH, Sept. 24.—By the breaking of the milldam at the old deserted Roberts Iron Company mill early today, as a result of heavy rains Saturday, property worth $25,000 was destroyed, and for a time it appeared that the great power house of the Plymouth Mills Corporation would be swept away.

A great whirl of water rushed through the Town Brook valley, leaving a blanket of slimy mud in its wake. The flood destroyed a street cut across Newfield street and swept away a small foot bridge on that thoroughfare.

The residence of Mrs. L. C. Luther was moved from its foundations and a number of small buildings owned by J. W. Towns were wrecked. Gardens and lawns were buried under two feet of mud, and the millponds of Bradford & Kyle, manufacturers of magnet wire, were filled with mud and their factory building undermined.

HELENA NOW AT SHANGHAI AND ALL WELL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The Navy Department received an official dispatch this morning announcing the arrival of the United States gunboat Helena at Shanghai. It read:

"Helena arrived Shanghai. All well on board."

The department is at a loss to account for the press reports from Shanghai and Manila stating that the Helena had been destroyed in the typhoon with all on board, a crew of 173 men and ten officers. She left Cavite on September 15 and was somewhat delayed by stress of weather.

Official Statement Issued To-day Declares District Attorney Will Have Vast Majority of the 950 Delegates to the Democratic State Convention.

John B. Moran's campaign managers, in a statement issued to-day, claim 700 of the 950 delegates to be chosen to the Democratic State convention.

More than half of the country delegates, they declare, will vote for the District Attorney for Governor, and it is claimed that Boston will be practically solid for him.

"The truth is that the opposition to Mr. Moran's nomination is hardly serious," are the concluding words of a statement issued to-day by the Moran campaign committee.

It abounds in confidence regarding the results of the caucuses. Following is the statement in full:

"It is to be noted that Mr. Quincy's pre-convention estimate is not only vague and general, but contents itself with large and indefinite assumptions, with showing that Mr. Moran has not, three days before the caucuses, secured a majority of all the delegates who could possibly attend the convention if every ward in every city and town with a voter on its list in the Commonwealth should actually be represented in the convention.

"To accomplish this remarkable juggle with figures, Mr. Quincy is obliged to ignore a fact that is well known to him in his long political experience, that a large percentage of the towns where he claims Mr. Moran's strength is not so great as in the cities will be unrepresented in the convention through their failure to hold caucuses, through holding caucuses contrary to law or through the delegates' failure to attend the convention.

BOSTON NEARLY SOLID.

"It is also very significant that although Mr. Quincy has announced Mr. Whitney's candidacy he does not once in all his long and labored prediction make an estimate of Mr. Whitney's probable strength in the convention. He appears to be sufficiently consoled if he can argue himself and others into the belief that the contest has not already been determined in Mr. Moran's favor even before the caucuses are held.

"In one instance where Mr. Quincy comes out from under the cover of vague generalities and makes a specific estimate of the Moran strength we are able to test his accuracy and good faith. He claims eighty anti-Moran delegates from Boston. Now as a matter of fact by no possibility can there be more than thirty-three anti-Moran delegates in the convention out of the whole 239 delegates to which the city of Boston is entitled unless fifty men can be found on the delegations shameless enough to violate their solemn pledges.

"Men have done shameless things in politics, but no reputable man has ever been found who would base a prediction upon the probability of delegates violating their solemn pledges.

"In twenty-one of the twenty-five wards of Boston every delegation is pledged to Mr. Moran. In Ward 9 there is one pledged for Mr. Moran and one which is unpledged, but which has in a circular publically announced to the voters of the ward that it is favorable to the nomination of Mr. Moran.

"Probably Mr. Quincy holds those men to have dishonorable intentions, but assuming them to be men of integrity and political decency Mr. Moran will have, without a contest, 216 delegates from Boston and the highest possible number of anti-Moran delegates from the city is twenty-three. But this is assuming that the unpledged delegations in the other three wards succeed in carrying the caucuses—a highly improbable event. It is quite likely that Mr. Moran will have every delegate from Boston favorable to him in the convention.

"This alone will constitute nearly a third of the delegates who will probably attend the convention.

"In the metropolitan district there are upward of 180 delegates who are pledged to Mr. Moran, and are practically unopposed.

"In the large cities beyond the metropolitan district there is a most unusual alliance between the local party leaders and the rank and file in favor of Mr. Moran. This combination has never yet been beaten, and it prevails in all the large cities except Worcester and Pittsfield.

"Mr. Quincy will scarcely have the hardihood to claim more than a stray delegate from the large cities of Lynn, Lawrence, Lowell, Fall River, New Bedford, Springfield and Holyoke, manufacturing cities where the workingmen prevail, and where local party leaders and overwhelming popular sentiment are both for Moran.

"WORKINGMEN FOR MORAN."

"In Worcester this condition does not exist. There the local leaders are divided. But two years ago, in the contest between Mr. Hearst and Mr. Olney, with every local leader opposing the Hearst delegates, the workingmen rallied to his support and overthrew the machine leaders in every ward but one in the city, including John R. Thayer.

"It is admitted that Mr. Moran will have the enthusiastic suport of the workingmen everywhere, and it is exected that he will carry Worcester without any difficulty.

"Nothing else is left to console Mr. Quincy but the small and remote country towns having one delegate each. All these country towns Mr. Quincy is bold enough to claim. He gives no reason whatever for his opinion, nor can he have any worth giving.

"It is a matter of political history, which Mr. Quincy will not deny, that the Democrats of these little country towns have always been progressive upon and strongly opposed to the corporation machine control which Mr. Quincy represents.

"Between the years 1896 and 1902, when the radical Democracy controlled the party, the delegates from these little country towns were a tower of strength to George Fred Williams and the other radical leaders.

"There is no reason whatever to believe that the sentiment in the country districts has changed.

"More than half of the country delegates will be for Mr. Moran.

"We feel it safe to figure upon more than seven hundred Moran delegates in the convention in which the probable attendance will be less than nine hundred and fifty.

"The truth is that the opposition to Mr. Moran's nomination is scarcely serious.

12 CITIES AND TOWNS IN JOINT CAUCUS

POLITICAL BATTLES STIR BOSTON ON EVE OF THE PARTY PRIMARIES

Contests Sharply Waged in Many Districts—Bitter Lomasney-Fitzgerald War.

To-day sees the windup of the political battle in Boston.

The Kiley-Dixon fight for the Senate, which involves Ward 4, Cambridge, and Wards 6, 7 and 8 in Boston, practically determines the political future of Mayor Fitzgerald. A sweeping victory for him means an indorsement of his policy.

A defeat or even a close vote on the senatorship question gives his opponents the advantage. Thousands of dollars have been expended in this fight by the Mayor's political friends. The discharge and suspension of Ward 8 men has added to the intensity of the feeling between Lomasney and Fitzgerald, and all the power and strength of City Hall is brought to bear to score for Fitzgerald's man.

The South Boston Fight.

The South Boston senatorial situation offers another lively contest between James F. Creed and Frank J. Linehan. Some bitter things have been said by friends on both sides and the result may be close.

There is a lively senatorial battle going on in the Ward 18, 19 and 22 district, where Representative John J. Butler, a former employe of the Boston Elevated Road in the claim department, is opposed by ex-Representative William A. Clarke of Ward 19.

The new Roxbury district, of which Ward 9 is a part, together with Wards 12 and 21, presents an exciting situation. Ex-Representative Thomas F. Curley is the machine candidate. The opposition leader is Timothy L. Connelly, former president of the Common Council.

The fact that Curley was rebuked by the Legislature for complicity in the civil service law frauds is being used against him. A new phase was added to the situation to-day by the announcement of John J. Mansfield as a candidate at the polls regardless of primary results.

The shoe-string senatorial district has a [illegible] red-hot contest. There are already in the running Edward J. Quigley of Ward 3, John J. Mellen of Ward 3 and George F. Monahan of Ward 4.

Congressional Contests.

There are two congressional contests in Boston, one in the Tenth, between Logan and O'Connell. The Republicans in the same district have four candidates, Callender, Gates, Freidman and Landy, but, the district being Democratic, the Republican chances of success are not bright unless either Logan or O'Connell, in the event of defeat at the primaries, should run independently. An effort is being made to unite on Callender in the event of such a result.

Senator Daniel W. Lane and ex-Senator I. P. Hutchinson are contesting for the nomination in the Eleventh District on the Republican side, while former Senator A. J. Peters has the Democratic field to himself.

Dorchester has a senatorial row in the Republican ranks between the two "Toms," Thomas M. Vinson and Thomas Leavitt, the district comprising Wards 21 and 24.

The Chelsea district, of which Ward 1, Boston, is a part, has a Republican row for the Senate, ex-Representative Hall of Revere and Burnham being the candidates.

Eugene N. Foss is making a strong fight for delegates to the Republican State convention for the Lieutenant-Governorship against Eben S. Draper and claims fifteen out of the twenty-five Boston wards.

There is on the Democratic end in Ward 11 a battle for delegates to the State convention. In this ward Josiah Quincy and John A. Sullivan vote and they head the delegation.

Associated with them is Thomas J. Gargan, Rapid Transit Commissioner, who is in Europe, and is not supposed to be dabbling in politics, at the same time drawing $5,000 salary from tax-ridden Boston. Then there is Charles H. Cole, Jr., former chairman of the Police Board, whose office was abolished by the Legislature, and former Alderman Henry A. Frothingham. Opposed to this galaxy of anti-Moran shouters is a ticket of young men headed by William F. Donovan, all real residents of the ward.

Delegations for Moran.

There is also a contest for membership of the State Committee in Wards 18, 22 and 19, where Edward F. McSweeney, former immigration commissioner at New York, ex-political boss of the Democratic State Committee, the manager of the defunct Olney presidential boom, seeks a place on the State Committee, as against Richard Sullivan, a lifelong resident of the district and a Senator of prominence. McSweeney's return to the State Committee is part of a plan to keep control of the organization for 1907 and 1908.

In all but a few wards delegations are pledged to Moran and will vote for him unless they follow Quincy's advice and violate their pledges.

The Republicans have a warm contest in the Seventh District for Congress, with three candidates, Roberts, Johnson and Allen. There is another in the Fifth between Butler Ames and F. W. Dunbar.

Representative William H. Ames, of North Easton, son of the late Governor Oliver Ames, is making the fight of his life for the Senate against Representative Thomas W. Williams, of Attleboro.

Councillor Thomas J. Grady and Editor Edward P. Barry are battling for the only Democratic position on the Governor's Council.

The anti-Moran forces are putting in extra licks in all the cities and towns, trying to capture delegates whether they are pledged or unpledged.

JOHN J. MANSFIELD SCORES T. F. CURLEY IN SENATE FIGHT

Lawyer John J. Mansfield of Ward 17, in announcing his candidacy for the Senate in the Fourth district, says:

"There are many things in the public record of Thomas F. Curley which condemn him as a candidate for the public suffrage. Curley has been repudiated again and again by the people of Ward 17. He has been repudiated by the State House of Representatives. He would not be allowed to sit in the State Senate if elected."

WATSON DENOUNCES M'SWEENEY AS THE "ELEVATED'S" MAN

James A. Watson of Ward 18 denies that he is in favor of Edward F. McSweeney, the Boston Elevated candidate for the State Committee. Watson favors Richard Sullivan and says:

"I am doing all that I can to further the election of Sullivan and to defeat McSweeney. McSweeney is interested in furthering the interests of his masters, Gaston, Quincy, John A. Sullivan and the corporation leaders in opposing Moran, who will surely be elected Governor."

BROOKLINE'S RICH DEMOCRATS TO HOLD ILLEGAL CAUCUSES

The few wealthy corporation Democrats of Brookline who control the town committee and who blundered purposely or otherwise in issuing a call for the caucus to elect delegates, now intend to elect delegates and are to meet Wednesday in the Town Hall.

The real Democrats of the town are out with a statement urging all voters to keep away from the meeting, as the delegates so elected will have no standing in the convention.

The town committee controlled by the corporation clique did not wake up to the idea of electing delegates until they learned that Henry M. Whitney was to be a candidate at the State convention, October 4, and intend to get admitted if the Moran delegates will let them in. Owing to the failure of the town committee to comply with the law, the coming caucus is illegal, and the Democratic club warns all Democrats who believe in law and order to keep away from it.

LOBBY IS TRYING TO BLOCK MOCK'S RENOMINATION

Jacob H. Mock of Ward 22, a Republican candidate for the State House of Representatives and seeking a renomination, is opposed by the "third house," whose work he exposed in the last session.

Mock's candidacy will test the sense of the ward, particularly on the point as to whether it pays to expose grafters on Beacon Hill or anywhere else just now.

DIXON MANAGERS WILL PAY $100 FOR EVIDENCE OF FRAUD

James Flanegan, Francis J. Horgan and Harry Levenson of Ward 8, who are with Mayor Fitzgerald in his Dixon fight, offer $100 for the person who can give evidence of fraud or anything that looks like it at the primaries in Ward 8. In the statement making the offer of coin, the names of John B. Moran and Stephen O'Meara are given as an indication of what will happen if anybody is caught.

ELLERY CLARK INDORSED.

Ellery H. Clark, candidate for the Democratic nomination as representative in Ward 9, was indorsed at a meeting of the Italian Democratic Club Sunday. The members of the organization, which includes the most prominent Italian citizens of the ward, are pledged to work in Clark's interests, and they predict victory for their candidate.

"OWLS" INDORSE TWO.

The Owl Club of Ward 18 is out in support of the candidacy of Thomas J. Fay and Michael P. Daly for Representatives.

3 HOME FROM CONGO MISSION

Three missionaries from the Congo Free State, in Africa, arrived in Boston to-day. They are J. E. Phipps, Miss Mary Fearing and Miss L. M. Thomas. With Miss Thomas was her adopted daughter, Aitha, a native Congo girl, twelve years of age. The returned missionaries are all natives of Jamaica and are on thier way to Selma, Ala., where they spend a furlough of about one year.

They have been working in Africa for twelve years as agents for the American Presbyterian Congo Missionary Society, with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn.

Miss Thomas said that they were not located in the part of the Congo Free State where the Belgian government's rule has been so much complained of. They have two missions near Kassai, on the Lulua River. The tribes which they teach are very peaceable, and were they allowed by the Belgian government to establish other missions they could do much more effective work, says Miss Thomas.

NEARLY CRASHED INTO 3 DERELICTS

The Savannah line steamship City of Augusta arrived in port to-day after having passed close to three dangerous derelicts on September 21 off the coast of North Carolina.

"They are all serious menaces to navigation," said Captain Johnson to the BOSTON AMERICAN. "They indicate to me that not one-half of the disasters caused by the terrible West Indian hurricane have been known yet."

FLEET AT PROVINCETOWN.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Sept. 24.—The battleship squadron of the North Atlantic fleet, comprising the Maine, Kearsarge, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Alabama and dispatch boat Yankton, sailed last night for Provincetown, where they will engage in target practice.

"I'M GOING TO WIN"; KILEY'S PARTING SHOT

Confident of Victory of Fierce Political Struggle in the Third District.

Daniel J. Kiley, who is opposing Edward W. Dixon for the Democratic nomination in the Third Suffolk Senatorial District, to-day declared his confidence in the outcome of the caucuses to-morrow.

"Dixon is only a figurehead in this fight," said Mr. Kiley. "I am fighting the Boston Elevated and their attempt to grab the streets of the West End, backed up by their servant, Mayor Fitzgerald. When the votes are canvassed to-morrow, it will be found that the people of this district know their enemies, and I am confident that I will secure the nomination. I am going to win."

Similar sentiments were expressed by Martin M. Lomasney, who has been fighting shoulder to shoulder to defeat Dixon and secure the senatorial nomination for Kiley. To-day Mr. Lomasney issued an appeal to the voters to stand by the fighting young representative of Ward 8.

JOHN A. SULLIVAN WORRIES OVER 1908 VOTE OF GEO. FRED

The pen and pencil branch of the "Searchlight Seven" is still at it to-day. Congressman John A. Sullivan wants to find out from George Fred Williams how he is going to vote in 1908.

The Congressman is reinforced by an essay from Arthur Lyman, chairman of the executive committee, who says John B. Moran is outside the party.

towns, which include Cambridge, Chelsea, Gloucester, Lawrence, Lowell, Newton, Quincy, Somerville, Waltham, Groveland and Middleboro, joint caucuses will be held for naming at the same time the candidates of both Republicans and Democrats.

In all other places in the State separate caucuses will be held on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Great efforts will be made to-morrow and next day by the bosses of the Democracy to secure delegates who are against J. B. Moran's nomination by the Democratic party for Governor. Mr. Moran's supporters, however, are confident that with the sentiment which has been expressed for him, not only in Boston, but throughout the State, when the caucuses are over he will have more than enough delegates to secure him the nomination.

In the caucus the bosses and self-constituted leaders are powerless to prevent the voters from naming the men of their choice.

Mr. Moran has delegations favorable to his candidacy in every ward in the city and throughout the tate.

HUTCHINSON RAPS BACK BAY METHODS

Ex-Senator I. P. Hutchinson, former president of the Republican City Committee, as well as a member of the Republican State organization, makes a severe attack upon the Back Bay influence in Republican politics. He also says he will cause an investigation of the methods used to nominate a candidate for Congress in the eleventh district. He says in part:

"Seemingly there never before was such a shocking condition of affairs within the Republican party. In its unprincipled machine methods, Mr. Lodge is grimly determined to sacrifice still another public office to the unsatiable appetite and greed of the Back Bay political vampire that ahs for many years been feeding upon the Republican party and sapping its strength until to-day, from the strong and vigorous majority of 170,000 for Walcott in 1896, it is now tottering upon the brink of defeat.

"The machine, in utter disregard of the rights of the voters of the district, and in base bearayal of the party's interests, is working to secure the nomination for Congress of Mr. Lane, whose record at the State House has been unsound and un-Republican. They have the active and energetic co-operation to this end of powerful liquor interests.

"Their candidate is going through the district from end to end, with a bundle of money, leaving it in bunches with ward committees and political clubs.

"Republicans are astounded to learn that the ward committees throughout the district were actually called together at the Copley Square Hotel to work unitedly in the effort to satisfy the ardent desire of this ambitious young man of the Back Bay for additional advancement to positions of high honor and trust.

"There will be a rigid investigation and a most thorough sifting of his campaign methods."

FIGHT "L" GRAB AT ALDERMANIC HEARING TODAY

West End United in Effort to Stay Granting of Location for Structure.

MENACE TO PROPERTY

The West End grab, proposed by the Boston Elevated Railway, comes up again in the Board of Aldermen for a hearing this afternoon. Many citizens of that section of the city who were unable to be present at the first hearing on September 12 are united in protesting against the grab, which, they agree, will ruin property and destroy business in the West End.

They demand that the Board of Aldermen turn down the location asked for by the Boston Elevated by which the proposed new elevated structure, starting at the North Station, pursues a diagonal course through the heart of the business and residential section of the West End to the new Charles River bridge. It has been pointed out that if the road is turned down, it has the right of appeal to the Railroad Commissioners, while the people have no appeal from the decision of the board.

The Board of Aldermen must act on the petition of the road on or before Friday, as the sixty days fixed by law within which action must be taken after the filing of the petition for approval of the location, expires on that day. If the road is turned down it has thirty days within which to appeal to the commissioners.

An attempt has been made to mislead the aldermen into the belief that, whatever action they take upon the proposed location, it is compulsory upon the Railroad Commissioners to grant the location. The law provides that the Commissioners must grant a location, but not necessarily the one asked for by the road. The action of the members of the Board of Aldermen upon the question will be closely watched by the people of the West End, and in fact the entire city, as Alderman Frank J. Linehan recently declared in a public speech that the Boston Elevated Railway Company own City Hall.

HEARST GAINS AS DELEGATES REACH BUFFALO

Belief Growing That He Will Sweep Democratic Convention for Governor.

BELMONT RING DESPERATE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 24.—As the hour approaches for the opening of the most important and most remarkable State convention that Democracy has held in New York State in years, the wonderful interest displayed in the probable action of that meeting by the people of the entire country becomes more and more apparent. Buffalo is rapidly filling with visitors from many States, who believe they perceive in the action of the convention to-morrow a political revolution which will affect the nation.

Belief is growing that Mr. Hearst will be the candidate named to head the ticket.

"Hearst Only One Who Can Win."

"Hearst is the only man who can win for the Democracy," is the gist of the advice given to the Democratic State leaders as they arrive.

All yesterday, last night and again to-day the Hearst movement went on, gaining strength with every new bunch of arrivals at the big hotels.

George W. Batten, Democratic State committeeman of Niagara; Frank W. Brown, Democratic State committeeman of Wyoming; Frank H. Mott of Chautauqua, Democratic State committeeman; James O. Bennett of Chautauqua; W. B. Murphy, chairman of the Orleans county Democratic Committee; Charles P. Bacon of New York and a score of other prominent Democrats are busy receiving delegates at the headquarters of William J. Conners at the Iroquois.

Try to Defeat People's Will.

There are good evidences that the every power of the Ryan-Sheehan-Belmont gang is being brought into play in an effort to defeat the will of the people.

Much, it is believed, depends upon the action of Charles F. Murphy. It is believed by those close to Tammany that the greater portion of the New York delegates will throw their influence to Hearst.

GRAFT PROBE IS RENEWED BY GRAND JURY

Session Resumed To-day With Many Important Cases to Be Considered.

GET TO WORK EARLY

The Suffolk County Grand Jury to-day resumed the September session, which was adjourned on September 8 until this date to enable District Attorney Moran to present evidence in the several so-called outside investigations that he has in hand.

The Grand Jurors filed into the Superior Criminal Court shortly after 9:30. Judge Bond, who was on the bench, in a few words directed them to their private room and to proceed with the matters that would be laid before them by the district attorney. The jurors then filed from the court room across the corridor into the jury room, and in a few minutes were engrossed in important investigations, under the direction of District Attorney Moran.

Take Up Graft Charges.

Among the matters that are scheduled for consideration at this adjourned session are the Chelsea graft continued investigation, the failure of the Provident Securities & Banking Company, alleged bribery of jurors in the Crocker will case, bribery charges of members of the Legislature and legislative corruption in general, the Fenway graft investigation, alleged padded payrolls at the City Hall, charges of intimidation of voters by Mayor Fitzgerald, made by Representative Kiley of Ward 8.

Chelsea graft and the padded pay-rolls at City Hall will probably be the first matters taken up by the Grand Jury. Witnesses in these cases were on hand early, waiting in the corridor outside of the jury room.

Longshoremen's Complaint.

Martin H. Ryan, of the Longshoremen's Union, was also in the gathering. Mr. Ryan said he appeared to present evidence of violation of the Sunday laws by the Metropolitan Steamship Company. The company, he said, should be indicted for employing non-union longshoremen on Sundays. The law prohibits the employment of any men, union or non-union, on Sundays.

Foolish Pretence Makes a Snob of the Nicest of Girls

By Beatrice Fairfax

IT'S sometimes a great temptation to pretend you know more than you really do, isn't it?

You need not be ashamed to acknowledge it to yourself, for it is a little weakness that nearly all of us are guilty of. But it is a very foolish weakness, just the same, for pretend knowledge rarely passes muster as the genuine article.

When we are putting on our grandest manner and pretending that we know, most people are sure to see through the thin veneer of our superficiality.

It's always best to be honest and confess that you don't know. It is no disgrace to say, "I don't know." Acknowledge your ignorance and ask for information. In that way you will learn something, but if you always pretend you will never learn anything.

Artificiality in anything, from manners to jewelry, is bad taste. Be yourself, your best self, a constantly improving self, but do not pretend to be what you are not.

Don't pretend to know people that you have never met and in all probability never will meet. There is an ugly name for that sort of thing. It is called "Snobbery."

Affectation of any kind never yet made a pretty manner. There is nothing that men see through more quickly and hate more than an affected manner.

If your natural manner is brusque and rough tone it down by gentleness, but never think that you can deceive people by a thin veneer of fine ladyism. The gentleness must come from the heart.

Don't imagine that fine clothes will make a lady of you. You might dress in silks and satins and diamonds and yet be far less well bred in manner or looks than your neighbor, who could afford no better than a cotton gown.

I have seen two girls behind a counter in a shop.

One had a manner which she fondly believed was all conquering. She was condescending to a degree, used many long words, with an occasional mispronounced French phrase. Her hair was waved and her rings were many.

The other was just a sweet, modest, ladylike girl, with no rings or curls. The English language was ample for her needs.

A child could have told the difference between the two—one was all artificial, the other perfectly natural.

That is the way I should like to see all girls appear.

Be natural in manner, in speech and in appearance. Keep on and on at self-improvement; you never can have too much of that, but don't lose the charm of a natural, girlish manner.

Affectation is as unattractive as it is unreal.

Poultice Pointers for the Home Nurse

TO make a poultice properly and with expedition is an art. The poultices in common use are linseed, bran, mustard, bread and oatmeal. The doctor always says what is the proper kind of poultice to use, or the home nurse will use her own judgment.

Their purpose is to keep the parts moist and warm, and whenever they fail to do so they are useless. They must be very hot, of the proper consistency and applied as hot as can be borne; also be changed frequently.

When changing the new poultice ought to be at the bedside ready before the old one is removed. Covering a poultice with several folds of flannel or oiled silk helps to keep it warm longer.

In every case it must be fixed to the part by means of bandages.

When a bran poultice has to be used it is usually a large one, and, being large, it retains the heat much longer and is of a very efficacious kind.

Put the bran into a large, warm basin and pour over it enough boiling water to moisten it. Stir it well and put it in a large piece of flannel, and so arrange it that the bran does not move.

Apply it as hot as can be borne.

To make a linseed poultice, have ready on a hot surface a hot piece of old, thin linen or muslin, three or four inches larger each way than you mean the poultice to be.

Warm the basin, and have the kettle boiling rapidly. Use crushed linseed in preference to linseed meal, as the former contains a larger proportion of oil. Place sufficient linseed in the basin, and pour the boiling water over it, stirring it rapidly with a table knife till it is perfectly smooth and does not adhere to the basin.

Spread it immediately on the linen to within an inch or so of the edge, and about half an inch thick. Turn over the edges of the linen, running each one along with the finger to smooth it out properly.

An oatmeal poultice must be boiled. Have enough water in a saucepan and add the oatmeal slowly, stirring all the time to prevent its becoming lumpy.

Let it boil for five minutes, then pour it on a piece of old flannel the size required and the proper thickness for the part on which it is to be used.

The oatmeal is usually sewn into the flannel, for if it gets near the skin or clothes it is apt to adhere, and is then difficult to remove. It must be changed and fixed on by bandages the same as linseed poultices.

A mustard poultice is a most useful application, and can be made in a variety of ways. The simplest and cleanest for ordinary purposes is the following: Take a piece of soft flannel, dip it in boiling water, wring it out immediately, and sprinkle one side of it with fresh flour on mustard.

The flannel should, while being sprinkled, be laid upon a hot plate, so that no warmth may be lost.

When a mustard poultice is wanted very strong it may be made with mustard and warm vinegar, or, when not required so strong, equal quantities of mustard and linseed meal may be mixed with warm water. This method will be found quite efficient.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

BETTER LET HIM GO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About six months ago I was introduced to a young man on the "L" station, and after this introduction I used to meet him nearly every day. The consequence of these meetings was that I have grown to love him dearly.

His manner toward me was always cordial and pleasant, but for the past two or three months have met him only once, and that time he simply nodded and passed on. What puzzles me most is why he seems to ignore me, as I have never offended him in any way.

Now, what am I to do, as I have grown to love him desperately, and feel that I could not live without him?

CONSTANT READER.

I THINK you had better put him out of your mind. You see, you know him but slightly, and he probably has some other friend in whom he is interested. I wish I could give you greater consolation than this, but if you are sure you have not offended him there is nothing to put it down to but fickleness on his part.

NO CLAIMS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady eighteen years of age. Some time ago I became engaged to marry a young man whom I loved very much. A few weeks ago we had a quarrel and I told him to consider our engagement at an end, but I did not return to him the ring. Have I any claim upon him or could I compel him to marry me, as I am very sorry that I broke our engagement?

L. A. H.

NO, you have no claims; you broke the engagement yourself. You should return the ring. If you care for him it is too bad you quarrelled. Perhaps if you told him you were sorry for your share of the quarrel he might want to become friends again. Try writing him a friendly note.

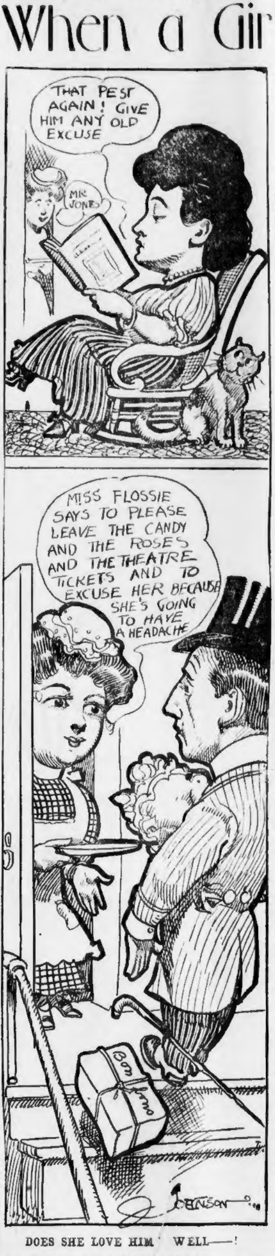
When a Girl Is in Love

How to Tell Whether You Are Preferred or Simply Common Stock

BY DOROTHY DIX



THAT PEST AGAIN! GIVE HIM ANY OLD EXCUSE
MR. JONES
MISS FLOSSIE SAYS TO PLEASE LEAVE THE CANDY AND THE ROSES AND THE THEATRE TICKETS AND TO EXCUSE HER BECAUSE SHE'S GOING TO HAVE A HEADACHE
Bon bons

DOES SHE LOVE HIM? WELL——!

YOU are desirous, son, of knowing when a girl is really in love with you, and when she is merely, as the old song puts it, "fooling thee."

It isn't as easy to ascertain the exact temperature of a woman's affections as it would seem to be. With the outward and familiar token you are, of course, familiar.

You have seen a girl's face brighten at your approach. You have sunned yourself in beauty's smiles. You have been greeted with rapturous words of welcome, and had feminine ears entranced by your words.

You have lady friends that call you up so often on the telephone to know why you don't come to see them that you are in danger of losing your job. You could make a pillow out of the locks of brown hair and golden curls that have been bestowed upon you.

You could paper your room with the photographs of the [illegible], and Sadies, and Janes that have been sent to you with sentimental inscriptions scrawled across them, and various and sundry maids have not withheld their flattering opinion of your charms from you.

All of this naturally inclines you to the opinion that you are a heart masher in general, but you do not know whether you have captured some one particular girl's fancy.

You are confident that you could marry forty women, if you lived in Utah, without the slightest trouble, but when you think of asking the only one in the world that you want, cold chills run up and down your spine, your knees tremble under you, your Adam's apple swells up to the size of a cotton bale, and you are willing to pay out good money for some advance indication of the state of her feelings toward you.

Some of the Symptoms

ALL signs fail in dry weather if a woman is a flirt. She can make any man think that she loves him, whether she does or not, but the majority of women are not coquettes.

They lack alike the ability, the desire to feign emotions they do not experience, and there are certain pronounced symptoms that every girl who is really hard hit for keeps exhibits, and that no man ought to have any difficulty in recognizing at sight.

The most elementary of these is, naturally, the girl's general attitude toward a man. A man who cannot tell whether a girl really likes his society or not is too big a chump to live.

Any one with ordinary intelligence can read in a woman's eyes whether she is interested or bored by her companion, whether the conversation is spontaneous and enjoyable, or whether she is toiling like a coal heaver trying to make talk.

No matter what his virtues are a woman will never fall in love with a man who bores her, and so never make the mistake of proposing to a woman whom you have ever seen yawn, or who displays a perfect willingness to have you depart after a twenty minutes' call.

By the fervor of a girl's desire to have you stay a little longer shall you gauge her interest in you.

Also take the tip that your name is Dennis to her if she is out three consecutive times when you call, or is smitten down with strange and sudden illnesses that force her to break engagements with you.

When the Lady Loves You

ALSO take heed as to whether a girl surrounds herself with her family and best girl friends when you call. If she does, be sure that she has said previously to them before she came down stairs: "If you don't help me out talking to this stick, I will never forgive you as long as I live."

The minute a girl becomes genuinely interested in a man she shoos everybody else out of the parlor, so she can have him for herself alone.

Observe if the girl always wants to be madly on the go, or if she is content to spend the evening quietly with you.

The girl who insists on being taken out continually to theatres and restaurants and other places of amusements, is not in love.

She merely regards you as a source of revenue, and puts up with your company for the sake of what you can do for her pleasure.

Take note of the personal interest she exhibits in you. This is entirely different from the polite patience with which we listen to strangers discourse about themselves.

The first unmistakable symptom that a girl gives that liking has warmed up into love is when she voluntarily questions a man about his youth, and entreats him to repeat over again the stories of boyhood sunny days.

Signs That Never Fail

ANOTHER symptom of love is when a woman begins to worry about a man's health and to take an interest in his soul's salvation.

These symptoms of a tender passion break out about the same time, and when a girl commences to beg a man not to get his feet wet, and to wear a muffler around his throat, he may know that he is IT. If to this she adds that she prays for him every night, he is safe to propose whenever he gets good and ready.

Still another sign of love is that a girl grows economical. She will let Tom, Dick and Harry spend all the money on her they will. She may have even encouraged you, in your days of probation, to buy the best seats in the theatre, the costliest bonbons and American Beauties, but the minute she begins to regard your purse as her purse, she comes down a few pegs and explains that gum drops are the healthiest candies after all, and that she prefers a sandwich after the play to lobster and wine.

The final unfailing indication of love is when a girl takes to domesticity. As long as a young woman tells you that she loathes the kitchen and hates a needle, you have an infallible indication that you have not touched her heart.

If, in addition to this, she brings a piece of sewing into the parlor, or presses upon you cake that she alleges she has made with her own hand, you are justified in getting an engagement ring, and having it ready in your pocket to put on her finger when you pop the question.

These be some of the signs of love in woman, son. Give heed to them and you will never get the mitten.

PRESERVED PEACHES.

THIS is a true and tried recipe:

Put peaches in a saucepan and pour boiling water over them enough to cover them. Let stand until you can remove skin with fingers. Then plunge them into a dish of cold water, and let them remain in it until you are ready to put them into the syrup. Halve the peaches and remove stones. Place stones in a saucepan in which has been put two cups of sugar and one cup of cold water. Boil this ten or fifteen minutes, then put peaches in this syrup and cook until soft enough to put a toothpick through them. In the meantime be sure to have jars, rubbers and covers scalding continually.

When peaches are ready take one jar at a time from the boiling water and set in a dish with a towel wrung from hot water placed around bottom and sides to prevent cracking. Then add peaches carefully so not to break them up and pour syrup in. Lift peaches up from bottom and pour in more syrup. When jar is full and flowing over a little place on cover and let remain over night turned upside down.

If recipe is followed carefully this preserve will remain good for years. In making syrup use same amount of sugar as peaches and half the amount of water. For example, one pound peaches would take one pound sugar and one-half to three-quarters cup of water.

SPICED GRAPES

PUT four pounds ripe grapes in granite kettle; mash until all are broken; add twelve whole cloves, twelve allspice, one inch square stick of cinnamon and half as much ginger root. Cook until the grapes are perfectly soft, then press through a sieve; add one pint vinegar and sugar to taste. Put on to boil again, and simmer until thick. MRS. E. W. PROCTOR.
Spencer.

PINEAPPLE PRESERVE

PARE the pineapples and put them through the chopper. Take three-fourths of a pound of sugar to every pound of fruit. Mix well and let stand in cool place over night. In the morning cook slowly until the fruit is tender and syrup clear. Skim carefully and put in jars. I have tried this and find it is all right.

MRS. LINDA WALCH.
No. 22 Oak street, Waltham.

TOMATO SAUCE

FOUR quarts tomatoes, one and one-half cups of red peppers (chopped), one cup of chopped onions, one and one-half cups of sugar, one-half cup of salt, three cups of vinegar, one and one-half teaspoons of cinnamon, one and one-half teaspoons of cloves, one teaspoon nutmeg. Boil for two hours and fill in bottles.

This sauce is of excellent taste. I would not like to be without it, and have made it every year for the last eight years.

MRS. HELENE HAMPER.
P. O. Box 865, Foxboro.

PRESERVED PEARS

THE following recipe is one that I have had very good success with and makes a delicious preserve:

Pare the fruit and cut in halves. Put them in cold water or they will be discolored. Use three pounds of sugar and one quart of water to three quarts of pears. When the syrup is boiling take the pears from the water and drop into the syrup, cook until they can be pierced easily with a fork. Fill the jars with fruit and then with syrup; strain syrup so that it may be clear. Bartlett pears are mostly used, but others are good. MRS. H. MULLER.
No. 85 Chestnut avenue, Jamaica Plain.

Mothers, Win Your Girl's Confidence

THE mother who is wise will become the trainer of her daughter from the time the little one begins to consider her dollies as babies. Care should be taken to impress upon the child's youthful brain the idea that domestic work is not drudgery and not beneath a woman.

Many a fond parent, out of mistaken love, endeavors to bring up her girl to be "quite the lady," and does not allow her to soil her hands in the homely work of the house. What is good enough for the mother is good enough for the daughter, and a would-be suitor is often turned away when he sees the girl whom he has so admired sitting idle in fine array, allowing her tired mother to do all the housework.

A mother has a duty to perform, and that duty is to teach her daughter to be a useful woman, and not a helpless, fine lady.

Another idea which should be planted and ever fostered in the mind and heart of a young girl is that it lies in woman's power to create and make the home.

She must understand that "Home" means the abode of happiness, the place where a man may recover his strength to encounter the troubles of life, and it is the work of a good mother to teach her daughter how to make such a home.

She can do this only by teaching the cares and responsibilities of life, yet teaching it so gradually and pleasantly that the lessons will not be recognized as such.

Another duty of every mother is to take interest in her daughter's recreations and amusements. No young girl should be allowed to associate with young men or girls whom she does not care to introduce to her mother or her family.

If a parent is loving and tender, her child will only be too pleased to confide in her when she meets new acquaintances, who may ripen into desirable friends or otherwise.

If, however, a mother is stern and forbidding, a timid girl will feel too frightened to mention the little incidents which occur in her life outside the parental home for fear of exciting ridicule or reproof, and untold misery may be the result.

Every mother, therefore, who has a daughter should seriously ask herself this question: "Am I training my child in a proper manner, teaching her to become a useful citizen?" If the answer is "No," then she should beware, for there will be heart-achings and bitter regrets for the work left undone.

When every mother realizes that she holds in her own hands her daughter's future happiness, the world will hear less of secret marriages and unhappy love affairs, because daughters will trustingly confide in "their best and truest adviser."

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

By Sidney Warwick

CHAPTER CXIII.—Continued

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

"YOU take in letters here, I see?" said the stranger.

"Yes; five cents each, or a reduction for a quantity. I shall be most happy to——"

"Any letter come for Mr. James Bartlett?" inquired the customer, interrupting him.

Mr. Gregson looked through a little pile of letters on a shelf among the tobacco canisters and found one.

"There is one, sir; are you Mr. James Bartlett, may I ask? For I expected a boy would call," he said, doubtfully.

"No, I am not; this is who I am." And the stranger showed a card to Mr. Gregson, who suddenly looked very uneasy as he read what was inscribed thereon, and his face changed color.

"I—I hope there's nothing wrong?" he stammered to the detective. "Of course, I never know anything about my customers, who they are or what letters they receive."

"Don't get excited, Mr. Gregson. Who do you say was to call for the letter?"

"A boy, sir. A lad of about fourteen——"

"Know where he comes from or anything about him?" inquired the detective.

"No; I haven't any idea," said the tobacconist.

Rather Unpleasant

"Well, you seem to have a nice, comfortable back room there behind the store," and the speaker glanced at the door with its curtained window. "Now I don't want to be in your way at all, Mr. Gregson; but I'm here on business from information received, and what I propose to do is to wait in that comfortable back parlor of yours for Mr. James Bartlett——"

"You mean the boy?"

"Exactly. Don't let it inconvenience you at all; just go on as if I wasn't there," said the detective, "only as soon as any one comes here asking for letters addressed to Mr. James Bartlett, just tip me the wink quietly before he goes out of the shop. You savvey?"

Mr. Gregson nodded uncomfortably.

"I quite understand, sir," he said, not at all pleased with this arrangement, but not daring to protest; he knew it would be a foolish proceeding on his part if he did protest.

He was by no means sure in his mind that this was not a police trap laid for himself, for in addition to selling tobacco, and taking in letters for customers, Mr. Gregson did a little in the bookmaking way; throughout the morning of any day when there was racing people would come into his shop to hand him mysterious slips of papers with quarters and half-dollars across the counter, without a word being said. And to-day there was a rather important race, and he knew that a good many of his sporting customers would be popping in with those significant slips of paper.

And with a detective sitting at all times in the back parlor!

The detective smiled grimly, as though he noticed the man's reluctant manner, and was not quite in the dark as to its cause.

"You needn't be afraid, Mr. Gregson, that I shall have eyes for anything you may not want me to see—either now or to be made use of later." And he laughed. "All that concerns me to-day is to get a glimpse of the boy who comes for that letter addressed to Mr. James Bartlett. I think I've made myself clear?"

The tobacconist led the way into the room behind the shop, and the man in plain clothes followed, to wait for the messenger who would call for the letter Freda Vail had written to her sister Olga.

"Now you can oblige me with a plug of chewing," said the detective, throwing a nickel on the table, "and I shall be all right here until the kid comes."

He sat down in an old horsehair armchair and buried himself in the morning newspaper.

It was not long before customers began to drop into the shop; one or two people calling to inquire for letters, an occasional customer for tobacco; but the majority were men—and sometimes women—who had come to back some horse running in a race that day.

All these persons were known to the tobacconist; a stranger coming in desirous of backing a horse would have been met by a blank stare on Mr. Gregson's part, followed by the statement that he, the tobacconist, knew no more of racing than a babe unborn, and didn't want to.

Reward at Last

The regular customers would come in, silently hand over the counter some silver wrapped in a piece of paper on which was written the name of some horse, and go out again, often without a word; men of all classes, some well dressed, others in workmen's clothes; even a well-known blind mendicant—who wandered through side streets exciting sympathy singing hymns in a dreadfully doleful voice, supported by his wife, an elderly bundle of rags, who was almost vindictively shrill in the high notes—would drop in to put a quarter, all in coppers, on a horse.

Mr. Gregson's face wore a quiet grin that morning as his racing customers came briskly in.

"It will be something to talk about afterward," he reflected, "that I was taking bets hand over fist in the store, with a headquarters man sitting all the time in the back room!"

"Any letters for Mr. James Bartlett?" said a boy's voice.

The tobacconist's back was turned; he was reaching down a canister of his special mixture for a customer who wanted half an ounce.

"In a minute; must serve this gentleman first," he remarked, scarcely glancing at the boy, as he weighed out the tobacco in a leisurely way.

"For Mr. James Bartlett, did you say?" he said, as he dropped the customer's money into the till. "I'll see; I rather think there is."

He went into the room behind the store and reappeared with a handful of letters. At the same moment a tall man emerged from the room, and shook hands with the tobacconist, remarking:

"Then there's nothing else our firm can do for you to-day, Mr. Gregson? No pipes or pouches?"

The Plot Thickens

"No. Give you an order next week, perhaps; can't promise that, though," said the tobacconist, entering with relish into the part.

The tall man walked out of the shop, not appearing even to notice the boy, who was the only customer in the shop at the time. The tobacconist looked deliberately through the bundle of letters.

"Here you are," he said. "A nickel, please."

Jim took the letter and walked out to the shop, and made his way to the Grand Central station.

Just outside the station some one called to him: "Hi, boy!"

Jim turned; the speaker was a man in a blue serge suit, holding a railroad ticket in his hand.

"You've dropped your ticket, haven't you, kid?"

Jim instantly felt in all his pockets and at last produced the return half of a ticket.

"No, sir; I've got mine all right."

The stranger glancing over the boy's shoulder saw that the name on the station on the return half was Yonkers.

"Must be some one else who's lost it then. Going to Yonkers, are you?" said the stranger affably. "I'm going there myself, it happens. Going down to John Herries's place on some business about the stables."

By the time they were at the station entrance, and with a nod the stranger left Jim, and went to the office, where he took two tickets to Yonkers.

"Yonkers!" he said to his companion, the man who had waited in the back room of the tobacconist's. "The postmark of the letter to Freda Vail was Mott Haven, wasn't it? She's pretty fly not to have posted the letter in her own neighborhood. Yonkers is where she was traced to before—to John Herries's place. Fancy she won't get away this time!" he added drily.

THE SKIPPING ROPE

WOULD you have your girls and boys possess plump calves, let them skip. Would you have an inexpensive remedy for torpidity of liver and its consequences, the skipping rope provides it. Excellent skipping rope! aiding the circulation, warming when cold, and removing stiffness from joints cramped by long sitting. But in your wisdom be moderate. Fatal results have followed a child's attempt to make a record score.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—The Chicklets are here for a three-game series with the White Sox. The latter count upon winning three straight from the Boston team, and thus get back some of the ground they lost to the Highlanders, who have just left here after taking three out of four games.

The locals, however, may meet a more serious proposition in the Hub team than they anticipate. It may not be so easy to take every game as they did when the two teams last clashed. Jesse Tannehill, who has always been more or less of a terror to the White Sox, is carded for the box to-day, while Nick Altrock, who is an equally hard nut for the Bostons to crack, may deliver the goods for Comiskey's bunch.

Manager MacLean of the Revere Roller Skating Rink has arranged for an open two-mile race to-morrow night.

Fred White, the champion, will be among the contestants, which will likely number ten. The race will start at 9 o'clock.

Vanderbilt Committee Should Surely Allow HARDING IN BIG CUP RACE

By J. C. KERRISON.

In view of the fact that Harding drove the Haynes the full distance of the elimination race on Staurday there can be no reason, if there is desire, for the racing committee to eliminate the car from the finals, as it did a year ago. Harding and his car are entitled to drive in the finals, although he is free to admit that he stand but little chance of winning out against the big foreign or domestic cars in the forthcoming struggle. It is a matter of congratulation that, although it had not completed the full distance at the time the race was called, the Pope-Toledo got a place on the team. This car is capable of much better and faster work than was shown in the elimination. All it needs is a better tuning up than was given it prior to the big trial event.

The Christie touring car which qualified will not be the entrant in the final, as by the date of the latter Christie will have his "Blue Streak" in shape. This latter car is admittedly a much superior one than the light touring car which did battle on Saturday. The other two qualifiers, the Locomobile and the Thomas need but little if any attention to get them in shape for the final, and those who witnessed their performances on Saturday are satisfied that they will be heard from in the final.

Joe Tracy, the winner of the race, not only made the fastest single lap of the day, 29 minutes 29 seconds, but no less than six of his laps were faster than the time made by any of the other contestants. The winner's time for each lap in the race follows:

32:53 31:01 30:34 29:48 34:59
29:29 37:27 30:59 31:27 34:07

Le Bion on the eighth round did a lap in 31:43, which was the second best round of the day after Tracy.

Lytle's best lap was his first in 32:33, while Lawell, in a Frayer-Miller car, came next with a lap in 33:10 on the eighth round. Christie's best lap was his first, when he covered thet circuit in 33:34. Belden on the same circuit made a round in 34:03. Roberts, in a Thomas, on the second round, made a lap in 34:13, and on the same round Caillios, his teammate, scored in 34:38. The Haynes car's best lap was its seventh, which it covered in 35 minutes 56 seconds. However, what the Haynes car lacked in speed it made up in regularity of running, as nearly all of its laps were made in about 36 or 37 minutes.

* * *

One of the foreign drivers, at the conclusion of the race, said:

"Some day your manufacturers will realize that you can't build a racer in a day or try out a car in a week. Many of these cars are well and strongly built, and your drivers, in spite of their inexperience, have a certain skill, but of what use is all that if the cars are not properly tuned up for a race?

"As near as I can find out, only one or two of these cars were ever driven over one hundred miles at speed and the result was what might have been expected—some small thing went wrong or some weak piece of metal gave way and the cars went down and out.

"These cars should have been ready at least three months before the race and thoroughly tried out."

* * *

C. H. Singer of the Matheson company, however, is of the opinion that drivers are more to blame than the machines. He said:

"What we need most are competent American drivers. There should be at least two races a year, so as to gvie them experience. As it is now, we have to depend on foreign drivers." With a view of developing an American Lancia, Mr. Singer said he would be willing to offer a prize of $1,000 if a race could be arranged.

A system of allotment which is ideal in its fairness will be adopted by the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association, when the assigament of the 25,000 feet of space taken by that association in the Palace show is made on Friday, October 5. The assignment of space will be by lot, and representatives of all companies which are to use these portions of the floor, will be present to make their drawings. Applications for space at the Palace show still continue to come in in great numbers to the Automobile Club of America, and both S. M. Butler, Secretary of the Club and Alfred Reeves, manager of the A. M. C. A. are kept busy with show matters.

COACH WRAY WON'T RETURN TO HARVARD?

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The Sun prints to-day in regard to Coach Wray of Harvard:

A report reached the Harlem River yesterday by the way of Toronto, Canada, that James Wray, the Australian sculler and coach of Harvard University, would not return to Cambridge, but would go to Australia for the purpose of rowing a special match with George Towns, the world's sculling champion. Wray did not come back with the Harvard men on Saturday and not a word was said as to his whereabouts. There is a rumor current that the blame for the defeat of Harvard by Cambridge has been laid on Wray's shoulders and he has not been pleased with the compliment.

James Rice, the professional coach formerly with the Weld Boat Club of Harvard, was a visitor at the Harlem Rowing Club yesterday. If the information derived from Columbia College men counts for anything Rice will have charge of the blue and white oarsmen for the next couple of years. When asked if the report was true White refused to say anything but that he would like to have the job, and so on.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Boston, Sept. 23.—With the speedy Pirates in a double header with the Tenneyites as the attraction the fans came out in force this afternoon.

The locals are putting up a good brand of ball now and if they continue their good work this week will make the Westerners hustle.

Last week the locals made a great showing. They played three games with the Champion Cubs and won two of them, and also had one combat with the Smoketowners and won that in easy fashion.

Lindaman and Young will most likely be the pitchers used by Boston to-day, while Manager Fred Clark of the visitors will probably send Phillipi and Leever to the front.

After the Pirates leave here the Cardinals will stop here for three days, and then will come Ned Hanlon's Reds for four games.

SAYS NELSON MUST WEAR PAD ON HEAD

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 24.—"The next time I fight Battling Nelson he will have to wear a pad on his head," said Joe Gans here.

"If the public wants another Gans-Nelson fight I am willing, but that fellow must wear three mits—one on each hand and one on his head. He butted me with his head as much as he hit me with his fists, and I won't fight him again unless he wears a pad," laughed the negro.

"The only mark I have from the fight is this cut on the lip where Nelson butted me in the fifteenth round. And, say, that pad must be a big soft one, too."

FURNITURE MEN WILL BOWL

Interest in the season's bowling has taken a decided step forward by the formation of a Retail Furniture Bowling League, composed of teams representing the principal furniture stores of the city.

The league has already organized with four teams, representing the Paine Furniture Company, the C. E. Osgood Company, the Plympton-Harvey Company and the Shawmut Furniture Company. It is the hope of the teams in the league that other retail furniture houses may be represented in the league, and the secretary, B. A. McMahon, of the Shawmut Furniture Company, would like to hear from bowlers in furniture stores not now in the league.

The Furniture League promises to be one of the liveliest in the city this season.

BILL DINNEEN TO QUIT GAME

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Bill Dinneen, the pitcher of the Boston American baseball team, is home here, and intimates that he won't pitch professional ball again. The probable reason for Bill's decision to quit the diamond is his coming marriage to Margaret Quinn of this city, which will take place early next month, and on which account Dinneen received leave of absence from his club for the rest of the season. After he returns from his honeymoon Dinneen intends to engage in business and forsake the baseball world.

BITHER & PALMER, HORSE TRAINERS, TO DISSOLVE

BY EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

After almost three years of partnership the firm of Bither & Palmer, the prominent Readville trainers and drivers, have decided to call quits on the first of November. The junior member of the concern has plans outside of the horse business, though he has spent his entire commercial life in that line.

For the past couple of years relatives have been after Palmer to connect himself with them in the laundry business, located in Waterville, Me. It is asserted the laundry in question is the only one there getting the trade, and with just another member of the relatives to assist in collecting the outside orders there is no question the dividends will be nearly 100 per cent. yearly.

With this complexion to affairs it was more than Palmer could stand. As he has recently declared: "It beats training horses. I would like to see a trainer that can count his checks on Christmas Day and see himself $5,000 to the good for the year. Surely, I have made a lot of money in training horses, but in my opinion the best days of the business have passed. What I have gathered in coin is going into the laundry, and then all I will have to do in the future of my life is to clip coupons.

"Really, I am sorry to leave the boys I have mingled with for the past twenty years or so. It brings tears to my eyes, indeed it does, and to prove it I am ready at any time to stand for a touch up to a hundred dollars from any one of them."

Ed Bither, the partner of Bard Palmer up to the first of next November, said the following about the dissolving of the firm:

"Palmer has been a royal good fellow to associate with. On every turn we have gathered in the mazuma in chunks. He has a head that does not need a pole to keep him from choking. Only for him we would have sold Codero last Winter for $3,500, in place of getting the $5,000 in the Spring from Ralph B. Williams.

"It is the saddest moments of my life to think that I will lose sight of him after the first of November. Surely, it was almost like a corned beef dinner to see him boss the men around. Yes, we made a world of money in the past three years.

"How much? When we figured the books up the other night the profits came near to $100,000. Not a great lot for business men of calibre. It is only the laundry investment means greater returns that my partner is quitting me. It will be lonely at Readville without having him in the long Winter nights to relate stories of Allen Lowe and other illustrious persons he has dealt with during his career on the turf."

But the whole truth of it, without joking, the horsemen in Greater Boston will miss the genial face of Bard Palmer, and wish him all kinds of success in his new venture.

HUB CHAMPION YACHT CHALLENGED TO RACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—W. H. Childs, the owner of the twenty-two foot class boat Joy, has issued a challenge for a race with the Orestes. The challenge was issued after the committee had selected the Soya to meet the Orestes in the match race and before the Boston champion had won. Mr. Childs, while taking the defeat of the Joy in good part, demurred somewhat to the opinion of the committee that the Soya was the best boat, and maintained that the Joy had a much better record during the season, and that after going back in her form the Joy had got in shape again, and by winning two of the trial races had shown that she was at least as good as the Soya and her early season's performances stamped her as a better boat.

It is hardly likely that the challenge will be accepted. The Orestes was to meet the best of the Class Q boats and to decide which was the best of the trio, Joy, Soya and Spider. Six trial races were sailed. The Soya's wins were in very heavy weather, and it was the opinion of the committee that, as she had shown herself to be the best boat in a hard blow and had performed well in light weather, she was the safest of the trio to select to defend the cup. The committee that made the selection was Theodore D. Wells, the chairman of the regatta committee, and Ex-Commodore Doremus of the Atlantic Club and B. V. R. Speidel of the Canoe Club. These gentlemen weighed the performances of the three boats very carefully before making their selection.

If the challenge should be accepted the committee would be placed in a very embarrassing position. Should the Joy win then it would show that a mistake had been made in selecting the Soya, and yet the conditions under which the Orestes and Joy might meet would probably be very different from those that prevailed on Saturday. Then, too, the Orestes by making such a match would have everything to lose and nothing to gain. She is now the champion 22-footer in these waters, and by meeting the Joy she might jeopardize that title. She might win and thus gain more honors, and she might lose on a fluke and then her title would be under a cloud.

BUSY WEEK FOR HARVARD

This will be a strenuous week of football for the aspirants to the Harvard football eleven. The men will have their first work at tackling the dummy and at scrimmage. Saturday the first game of the season will be played against the Williams team. Two big additions are expected to the Crimson squad this week in Guard Burr and Quarterback Starr

WALLER WILL RETIRE FROM CINDER PATH

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Frank Waller the plucky little runner from Milwaukee who won the quarter-mile national championship at Travers Island, has announced his retirement from the cinder path. For some time past Waller has been running in opposition to the wishes of his parents, and of late the pressure has been so great that the crack Westerner decided to quit the game if he won the championship at the national meeting.

Although a small man, standing but five feet seven inches in his stockings, Waller is one of the greatest quarter-milers the West ever produced. As a hurdler he has also shone. He finished but a yard back of Harry Hillman in the quarter-mile low hurdle race at the Olympic games at St. Louis in the wonderful time of fifty-three seconds. In the race at the national meet Waller won against great odds, as a couple of the local runners appeared to need more than the usual amount of room in which to swing their arms. After receiving a couple of pokes in the ribs Waller saw what was up and got clear of the trouble by gaining the lead.

GARDNER MAY FIGHT FITZ

MANHATTAN, Nev., Sept. 24.—A $5,000 purse has been offered here for a match between Jimmy Gardner, the Lowell fighter, and Willie Fitzgerald of Chicago.

Both men have expressed their willingness and it is believed articles will be signed in a few days. Both men are topnotchers in their division and should put up some interesting milling.

SELECT SILER AS REFEREE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—Word was received here to-day that the Goldfield Athletic Club has signed George Siler official referee of the club and has requested him to act as representative in both Chicago and New York.

His work in the Gans-Nelson fight gave the club members such satisfaction that they immediately agreed to give him the job for good.

CLEVELAND, 8; COLUMBUS, 3.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 24.—Glen Leibhart pitched his first game for the Cleveland American League team yesterday and defeated the Columbus champions by the score of 8 to 3. Cleveland put up a perfect fielding game, while the locals were just the reverse.

DESHLER WILL HAVE TO LAND KNOCKOUT TO WIN

A protege of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien is what the local fight fans will see on Wednesday night at the Lincoln A. C., when Young Erne and Dave Deshler hook up in the main bout of fifteen rounds.

This Young Erne is the boy selected by Jack McGuigan, the manager of that crack Philly boxing club, the National A. C., to meet Joe Gans when the colored champ lands in the East.

Even Deshler's manager thinks that his boy must knock the Quaker out in order to win, as he is a marvel of cleverness and can outscore any boy of his weight. He can hit from any position and is always on his toes, never leaving any blank spaces for his opponent to pick out an opening.

He keeps his hands continually playing on his foe's face and rips them up to the head while the receiver is trying to locate him. He must be the goods or Jack McGuigan would not have him under his wing as the star attraction of his big club.

Deshler's only hope of winning is to get to the Quaker from the start and wear him down from the power of his punches, and the only way to reach Erne is to get him in a corner. The local boy knows his game, learning it from his contest with Erne in Slowtown, and has prepared himself for some great speed work on this occasion.

Erne has met all the best in his class in six-round bouts and beaten Harry Lewis twice in long distance bouts, while he tumbled Kid Sullivan, the boy who beat Jimmy Briggs, all over the ring.

Deshler will take his last workout with Sam Langford to-day, and then do only light stunts till the night of the battle. As they go on at catchweights, he will not have to get down to any mark. Erne scales very near the same as Deshler, and there will not be any difference to speak of between them.

The exhibition which Erne gives will be a taste of what Philadelphians demand in their whirlwind matches, only there will be more of it with the sport scheduled for fifteen sessions.

* * *

Dick Hyland is apt to get it in the neck when he meets Eddie Hanlon at 'Frisco Friday night. The latter has had lots of experience, while Hyland is practically a novice, and should have little trouble getting the big end of the purse.

* * *

Jimmy Gardner will clash with Rube Smith at Denver Friday night. He knocked out Smith in five rounds at Denver two years ago, and as Gardner has improved greatly since that time it is reasonable to suppose that he will have an easy time winning.

* * *

The fight between Mike Schreck and Marvin Hart, scheduled for Saturday afternoon at Bellevue, Ky., should prove a hot affair. The pair met in a four-round bout in New York last season, but the mill was a poor exhibition of the manly art. However, both men have conditioned themselves for this battle, and they are expected to slug from bell to bell.

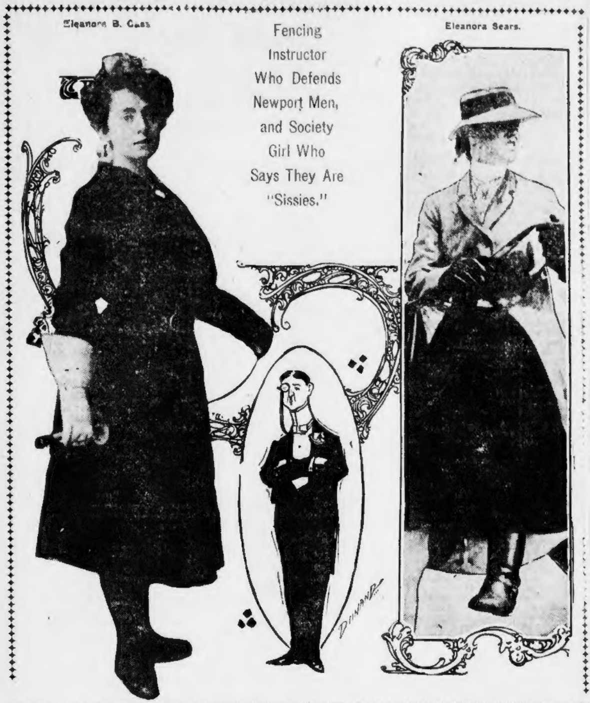
Athletic Society Girl Says That They Are; Woman Fencing Teacher Says They Are Not



Fencing Instructor Who Defends Newport Men, and Society Girl Who Says They Are "Sissies."

MISS ELEANORA SEARS, the Boston and Newport athletic society girl, has said: "Newport men are sissies."

And now comes Eleanore Baldwin Cass of Medford, the smart set fencing instructor, and says it is no such thing. She caustically sums up Miss Sears's epithet as "ridiculous."

By Eleanore Baldwin Cass.

SUCH strenuous words as those quoted of Miss Sears about Newport men naturally attracted my attention. To say they are "sissies" seems so ridiculous.

Of course, I do not think that they make any display for extravagant muscular development. Men do not as a rule. They are not so dramatic as women. If they swim, fence or anything like that, they take it for granted that they should do these things, whereas a woman expert in those sports immediately begins to pose as a wonder.

The day is soon coming, however, when all women will fence and swim, doing both well. And they will not feel especially ordained by Providence to remind the men of their lack of muscle and their inability to do anything but adorn society.

I have been in Newport nearly eleven years, having gone there under the patronage of one of the society leaders. My work has taken me to almost every set, and you know there are sets within sets at Newport.

At the beach I have seen most of the men swim at one time or another as far as the lightship—no easy swim. One late October day I ventured a swim. The waves were very high and the water pretty cold. There were five or six young men down there, all from the best families and making good swims. None of them seemed "sissies" to me.

Many of the men of Newport fence, and really fence well. Only they do not make any talk about it. I could name twenty of them who, besides fencing, play good games of tennis or golf. As for walking, I have known them to take ten-mile walks for the fun of it. That must mean something for their love of exercise when they own the best horses that can be bought and the best automobiles that can be made.

All, with few exceptions, I think, ride horseback, and as for driving, few professional whips can boast a better mastery of the reins.

The Newport men do not proclaim their muscular activity from the housetops. They would, I think, come up to the scratch in a real test.

INDEPENDENCE MEN GET BUSY FOR THE TICKET

League Workers Enthusiastic Over Action of Convention on Saturday

WILL BRING OUT BIG VOTE

In cities and towns in all parts of Massachusetts, from which came the delegates to the Independence League convention on Saturday to nominate John B. Moran for Governor, there has been started an aggressive campaign to make the nominee the next chief executive of the State.

Many of the delegates remained in town over Saturday night and Sunday, conferring with the members of the several committees and formulating plans for getting out a big vote for Moran.

Brockton, which thinks much of E. Gerry Brown, pleased with his selection for second place on the ticket, plans to give him, as well as the leader, strong support.

Springfield also likes the idea that one of its solid business men, Thomas L. Hisgen, nominated for Auditor, has a place on the ticket. There are lots of votes in Springfield and lots of members of the Independence League, and there is going to be some work done in that city that will make the politicians take notice.

From now until election time Independence Leagues are going to be busy with rallies in the interests of the ticket. There are Independence Leagues in every one of the forty senatorial districts. Every league has a plan of campaign, has an interest in the fight for better government and is ready to make the fight a strong one.

Now that the league has a ticket in the field, the membership is being boomed. There is haste in many of the towns among both Republicans and Democrats to be enrolled in the lists and assist in bringing out support for Mr. Moran.

CARRIERS PUT BAN ON RALLY

Some unauthorized person is alleged to have distributed circulars about the central and branch postoffices of this city, Saturday afternoon to the effect that a meeting of the Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association would be held at the American House Sunday afternoon.

The officers of the association assert that this circular was unauthorized. The meeting did not materialize.

Officers of the association were on hand to warn the promoters of the meeting not to use the name of the benefit association.

It is against the rules of the Postoffice Department for government employes' associations to publicly or privately indorse candidates for political offices.

THINK HEADLESS MAN SLAIN TO HIDE CRIME

POLICE CONVINCED VICTIM IN NEW YORK TRAGEDY KNEW STRANGLED GIRL.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A score of detectives and plain clothes men to-day began a determined attempt to find the house in which occurred the cold-blooded murder of the man whose dismembered trunk was lying at the bottom of an excavation at the southwest corner of Thirty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue.

Detective Petrosino and his staff took up another end of the mystery to-day, working on certain information already in their possession. Petrosino was of the belief that the murder of to-day has a direct connection with the strangling to death early in the month of Maria Pecoro in her room at No. 52½ Carmine street. The theory of Detective Petrosino is that the murdered man was one of those arrested in connection with the murder of the Pecoro woman.

Slain to Quiet His Tongue.

He gave the police valuable information in that case, and it is believed that he was put out of the way by the man or men vitally interested in preventing any further information reaching the authorities.

The clue of greatest weight—two torn pieces of oilcloth, bearing a picture of Columbus discovering America—in which the torso of the murdered man was wrapped by the murderer, was what the police were working on. They went from house to house in the neighborhood of West Thirty-sixth street, looking for the room containing the remainder of the torn piece of oilcloth or the shop where it was sold.

In every case they went through the buildings from top to bottom examining searchingly every room. Every shop in Thirty-sixth street and on neighboring streets and avenues where oilcloth such as that snatched up by the murderer in which to wrap up his horrible work might be sold was entered and the proprietor closely questioned.

Hunt for Head and Thighs.

While twenty men were working on the oil cloth clue, the reserves of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station resumed a search which had been kept up all night for the head and thighs of the body.

The legs below the knees and the arms had been found, wrapped in a bundle, in a New York Central freight car about 100 yards from where the trunk was discovered.

The police took up one other important clue to-day. This was a story told by Henry Voldenberg, night watchman for the Dempsey Contracting Company, who while on duty at No. 525 West Thirty-sixth street, near the excavation where the remains of the body were found, heard near midnight on Saturday a man crying for help. The man was being pursued by five other men.

According to Voldenberg's story to the police of the West Thirty-seventh street station the five men caught the fugitive opposite No. 510 West Thirty-sixth street, which is a stable.

There they attacked him, threw him to the pavement and beat him. He manged to regain his feet and darted off again, once more pursued by the five men.

Voldenberg could not leave his post, so he did not follow.

He gave a description of the five men, and the police began a search in the vicinity to-day in the attempt to locate them. Voldenberg described the man pursued as about 5 feet 4 inches tall, of swarthy complexion and weighing about [illegible] pounds.

This description to some extent fits that given to the police of Luigi Ottone, aged twenty-six, of No. 157 West Fortieth street, who has been missing since last Saturday morning. The description also fits to some degree the characteristics of the trunk of the murdered man.

HUB MAN FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL; GAS ON

200 DOWN WITH 'DEEP SEA' EAR

The heat wave has brought an epidemic of "salt water ear," an ailment peculiar to ocean bathers. More than 200 cases have been treated at the City, Emergency and Homoeopathic hospitals in the past few days.

This complaint is caused by the ear drum becoming inflamed through a chill. Salt water is also apt to lodge in the passage from the ear to the throat.

MONGOLIA STARTS UNDER OWN STEAM

MIDWAY, Pacific Ocean, Sept. 24.—The passengers and mail on the steamship Mongolia have been transferred to the United States transport Buford. All the passengers are well. The Buford and the Mongolia sailed yesterday for Honolulu and will keep together on the voyage. The Mongolia is working under her own steam.

PLAN BIG RECEPTION

PROVINCETOWN, Sept. 24.—President Roosevelt will visit Provincetown on Friday or Saturday to witness the annual target practice of the North Atlantic fleet, and the Selectmen are making elaborate preparations for the reception to the Chief Executive.

There are now eight battleships in the harbor besides numerous smaller government vessels, and the targets will be taken out to sea to-morrow in preparation for the practice on Saturday. The President will come to the Cape on board the Mayflower and his stay here will be brief.

WOMEN IN WAR ON CIGARETTES

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 24.—Having made a successful crusade against suggestive signs, the Civic League has begun war on cigarette smoking by minors. Under their prodding the police have been particularly active of late, and Saturday night they gathered in two Fall River boys, Joseph Kelley and Frank Hopkins, aged ten, who had a package of cigarettes.

The boys ran away from home a week ago and had been tramping since. Each boy was fined $4.60 for smoking cigarettes. The boys were taken home by their parents.

FIREMEN HURT; $30,000 BLAZE

NEEDHAM, Sept. 24.—Fire last night destroyed the factory of John Mosely, manufacturer of sweaters and underwear, in Highland avenue. The loss is estimated at $30,000. The blaze started in the boiler room.

The factory was a three-story wooden structure, and being in the centre of the village the fire menaced a number of frame houses in the vicinity.

The firemen worked hard to save the books of the factory, several of them being overcome in the attempt to reach the office on the lower floor. Thomas Crossman had to be carried out of the building.

Mr. Mosely, in the attempt to save some of his property, fell down stairs and sprained his ankle.

MYSTERY IN WOMAN'S DEATH; BODY ON BEACH

WAS WELL-DRESSED AND HAD A GOLD WATCH BEARING THE INITIAL "F."

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 24.—The police of this city are hard at work to-day on the mystery surrounding the death of a well-dressed young woman whose body was found yesterday on the beach at West Haven.

The body has been brought here and is held for identification. It is that of a woman about thirty years old.

The only clue so far discovered which may lead to identification is a monogram "F" on a gold watch found on the woman. On her left hand were a wedding ring and a turquoise ring, and on her right hand a plain gold band. Earrings of imitation diamonds were in her ears.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL ADMITS MURDER, ARSON

BREWSTER, N. Y., Sept. 24.—During the funeral of Wilbur W. Winship, two years old, Jennie Bliss, fourteen years old, who had charge of the dead child from infancy, yesterday signed a written confession made to Richard Mitchell, coroner of Putnam County, that she had administered the poison which killed the boy.

She stated also that she had started the fire which last Wednesday destroyed the large barns of the farm of Herbert Winship, father of the dead child and a wealthy cattle buyer of [illegible] Corner, thirteen miles from here.

Although the confession seemingly clears the deep mystery which surrounded the poisoning of the child, and Coroner Mitchell ordered the girl locked up in White Plains jail on a charge of murder, he declared he did not think he had yet reached the bottom of the case.

Improbabilities and discrepancies, he says, pervade the girl's story and these led him to question very closely Mrs. Herbert Winship, the mother of the child.

WORST ECZEMA DOCTORS EVER SAW

Spread Rapidly Over Body—Limbs and Arms Had to Be Bandaged and Scalp Looked Dreadful—Suffered Untold Misery for Three Years—Better in Two Months

MARVELOUS CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My son, who is now twenty-two years of age, when he was four months old began to have eczema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered. We had all the doctors around us and some from larger places, but no one helped him a particle. The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I had to bandage his limbs and arms; his scalp was just dreadful. I used many kinds of patent medicines before trying the Cuticura Remedies,—all to no avail.

"A friend teased me to try Cuticura. At last I consented, when my boy was three years and four months old, having had eczema all that time, and suffering untold misery. I began to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies; the Cuticura Soap helped as well as the Ointment. He was better in two months; in six months he was well; but I gave him the Cuticura Resolvent one year,—using twelve bottles, I think,—and always used the Cuticura Soap for bathing, and do now a good deal. He was four years old before he was well, and his skin became perfectly fair when cured. I give you permission to publish this letter for I am always glad to do good when I can. I think I have told you all there is necessary to tell." Mrs. R. L. Risley, Oct. 24, 1905. Piermont, N. H.

Success in the Gulf Coast Country

Every Tuesday and Saturday there will appear in the columns of this paper an example of what has been done in farming in the Gulf Coast Country on the Brownsville Line.

Tomatoes Pay $350 an Acre.

Mr. F. M. Lawrence, of Nueces County realized $700 this Spring from one crop of tomatoes raised on two acres of land. He can testify that truck farming pays in the Gulf Coast Country.

If you would like to know what he thinks about it, write him at Corpus Christi, Tex. He will tell you his experience.

But there is no secret in his success. It's the rich soil, bountiful supply of water for irrigation, and perfect climate. Tender vegetables can be raised almost every month in the year. They can be marketed in Winter and early Spring, when the price is highest. The land will raise two and sometimes three crops a year; twenty acres there will make as much as fifty acres in many other places.

The climate is good for people as well as for vegetables. The Winters are mild and the Summers are tempered by the cool Gulf breezes.

Don't you think this is better than a one-crop country, where your success depends on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.

From Kansas City,	20.00
From Peoria,	23.00
From St. Paul,	27.50

BRAINS VS. MONEY

Represented by JOSEPH F. O'CONNELL

O'CONNELL can get results at Washington.

The Tenth District needs a man of brains and force who can and will fight to obtain improvements and legislation that will bring about the establishment of great industries such as the Fore River Engine Works and the former Norway Iron Company. Industrially, the district is in a condition of stagnation. Employment must be furnished to the thousands of men who seek to earn fair wages.

The Working Men and Wage Earners should be represented by a man who will be true to his pledges. O'CONNELL is the son of a labor-unionist and wage earner, and is pledged to support organized labor.

Read the record of his opponent, Edward L. Logan.

Logan was condemned by the Boston Central Labor Union for voting against the Washington Street Subway referendum.

Logan opposed the modification of the Employers' Liability Act, a law that deprives the employe of his just legal rights.

Logan voted with the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. in opposing the establishment of the South Bay Wharf Company. This company, since its establishment five years ago, has provided employment for several thousand men. Logan's vote antagonized the well-being of these men and their families.

Logan is the son of a millionaire, and Logan's legislative record proves that he is in sympathy with corporate interests.

Logan relies on his money to purchase the nomination.

O'CONNELL relies on his own ability and the good sense of the people.

The public record of O'CONNELL refutes the charge that he has been disloyal to the party's interests. O'CONNELL has said, time and again, during the campaign, that he never worked for, supported, or voted for a Republican candidate. O'CONNELL'S Democracy can be vouched for by Mayor John F. "HOODOO" FOR THE GEORGIA

The United States battleship Georgia was put into commission to-day at the Charlestown Navy Yard. When the American Jack was being raised on the bow of the war vessel the halyards stuck, and the flag came to a stop. The trouble was quickly remedied, however. The incident appeared to make a deep impression on the officers and crew, and the Georgia will have to behave particularly well in order that the "hoodoo" stigma may be erased.

The battleship was turned over to its commander, Captain Davenport, by Commander Shipley, the acting commandant of the yard, and Admiral Albert S. Snow attended. About 150 sailors were transferred from the receiving ship Wabash. Musicians were detailed to the Georgia from the Rhode Island. The Georgia will remain at the Navy Yard for two months.

The Georgia was fitted with a 31 foot racing cutter to-day.

BOSH! G. G. A.

THEY FAIL TO MAKE GOOD

VOTERS OF 6TH SENATORIAL DISTRICT, WARDS 13-14-15-16

The so-named Good Government Association, at the 11th hour of my campaign for the Senate, made some vague, indefinite and sarcastic insinuations against me. I demanded, sought and welcomed an immediate investigation. The district attorney requested the association to produce their facts, if they had any, and they have dismally failed to do so. They know and I know that they have no facts. I deny absolutely their vague insinuations.

The so-named Good Government Association has been opposed to me ever since their organization because I have always been opposed to them. When the association was first organized I discovered that its membership was composed mostly of franchise seekers and opposed to the public good. This I have shown and repeatedly stated upon the floor of the Board of Aldermen and from the public platform. I have exposed their methods and their membership, and for this I have been marked by them for defeat.

It is very significant that I am the only candidate for office whom they attack. Their insinuations in the last hours of a campaign and their dismal failure to make good should be repudiated by every fair-minded citizen.

I opposed the Dock Trust.

I opposed the taking of Boston's streets for the use of freight cars, in which some of their members are keenly interested. I favored the "Overtime Bill," upon which this association was lamentably silent. I worked for the passage of the "Employers' Liability Act," "The Public Opinion Bill" and the "Picketing Bill," which may account for more of their opposition.

The corporations want me defeated because they cannot control me, and they use the so-named "Good Government Association" in an effort to bring it about.

Upon my past record I have been unqualifiedly indorsed by the wage earners of Boston. On the other hand, I am opposed by the so-named Good Government Association. This is as it should be.

I am indorsed by the people whose servant I have been; I am opposed by the corporations whose greed I have unrelentingly opposed. I do not fear the judgment of the people.

FOR SENATOR

AND THEN READ O'CONNELL'S RECORD

1897 to 1904—Repudiated by the Democratic voters of his own ward. Never elected to even a place on his own Ward Committee, though a candidate many times.

1897—Opposed regular Democratic nominee for Mayor, Josiah Quincy. Some of his speeches against Mr. Quincy are reported in the Boston Herald on Dec. 10, 12, 16, 17 and 19, 1897.

1901—Opposed the regular candidate for Mayor, Patrick A. Collins, and was connected with the movement to elect Thomas N. Hart Mayor against Patrick A. Collins. Evidence of his connection with this movement is reported in the Boston Journal, Nov. 2 and 3, 1901, and the Boston Herald, Nov. 4, 1901.

Worst of all, Mr. O'Connell has dodged the truth of these charges of treachery to the Democratic party. The Democrats of the 10th district know the facts and will deal summarily with the man who dares deny truths known to all men.

O'Connell's Weakness

With absolutely no record or public experience, Mr. O'Connell has resorted to methods during this campaign seeking to hoodwink the voters of the 10th district.

Of Mr. Logan's long and honorable legislative career he has questioned only two points, one of which was Mr. Logan's vote on the Referendum. Mr. Logan publicly answered this and acknowledged that he did vote against the Referendum, but only in the interests of organized labor, inasmuch as his vote was the means of preserving the famous "LOGAN LABOR CLAUSE" in the Subway bill.

Mr. O'Connell also charged that Mr. Logan voted against the Employers' Liability Bill. Mr. Logan has publicly branded this statement as a FALSEHOOD, and has published affidavits and statements in the newspapers of Boston which brand Mr. O'Connell's charge as a downright lie in the eyes of all intelligent men.

Mr. O'Connell has steadfastly refused to answer the charges of Mr. Logan, publicly made through the columns of the newspapers of Boston, that MR. O'CONNELL WAS A TRAITOR TO THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY on at least three occasions. He has also endeavored to fool the Democratic voters of the Dorchester district by claiming that if elected to Congress he will look out for the interests of Dorchester alone. Mr. Logan, on the other hand, states and pledges his word of honor that if he is elected to Congress HE WILL REPRESENT THE INTERESTS OF THE ENTIRE 10TH DISTRICT.

Wage Earners' Club Indorses Edward L. Logan.

"Hon. Edward L. Logan:

"Dear Sir—This is to notify you that your legislative record has been indorsed and that you have the official indorsement of the Wage Earners' Central Club of Boston in your candidacy for the congressional nomination in the 10th Massachusetts Congressional District.

"Yours with best wishes for your success,

"A. L. LEEMAN,
"Recording Secretary Wage Earners' Central Club."

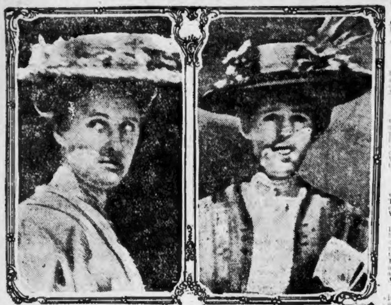
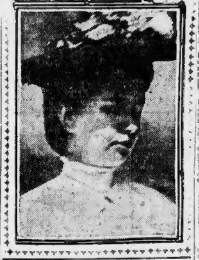
WOMEN SHOPPERS KEEP WATCH ON CAMERA MAN





These unidentified shopping photos are republished to give the originals another chance to win the awards of $2 each.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 24, 1906

Plain Americanism Hurts A Newspaper's Feelings.

But It Strikes Us, and It Will Strike Others, as Plain Common Sense.

A newspaper, which takes itself seriously, has started out, in long, solemn, tearful columns, to destroy our political views and hold us up to the contempt of the wise world. Its rallying cry is, "Shall the Democratic party die?"

Our answer is, "No; the Democratic party shall not die. Neither shall the Democratic party be skinned, stuffed and put on the shelf of the distinguished taxidermists, Ryan, Belmont & Co.

"The Democratic party shall live. It shall be Democratic. It shall be useful to the people—NOT A WORKING TOOL FOR CORPORATIONS."

It is a pleasure to reproduce some of the solemn attacks made upon our political ideas by this newspaper that takes itself so seriously.

It says, for instance:

> "They (that means this newspaper) urge the masses to seize the Government, not merely to maintain better order, not merely to administer more even-handed justice, but to obtain better wages for themselves, shorter hours of work, more leisure, cheaper food, better houses, lower rents, cheaper transportation."

Isn't that an amusing attack?

Is it the idea of the foolish newspaper that "THE MASSES" were not INTENDED to control the Government?

Didn't the men who established this nation understand that it was to be the PROPERTY, the possession of the masses, which means the MAJORITY?

Does the average American understand that a republic is supposed to be controlled by a small class ruling the masses for its own benefit?

Very queer ideas some of our suddenly made rich newspaper editors seem to be afflicted with just now.

That solemn, foolish newspaper complains that we advocate control of government by the masses, "not merely to administer more even-handed justice," but also "to obtain better wages, shorter hours, more leisure, cheaper food, better houses, lower rents, cheaper transportation."

We plead guilty. Every word of it is true.

We DO believe that the object of government IS TO MAKE MEN HAPPIER. What does the foolish newspaper think that men want? WHY does it suppose a republican government was established by the people of this country?

Does this poor, foolish editor imagine that the people simply wanted a chance to set off fireworks on the Fourth of July, cheer for a few misrepresentatives in office, and spend the rest of the time collecting money to pay dividends on watered stocks?

Not a bit of it. The people WANT their Government to give them greater comfort. They don't make laws in the air. They make practical laws. Regulating transportation charges by law is no NEW thing.

We hope—and we confess it—that the result of public intelligence, expressing itself through the ballot, will give to all the people greater comfort, which means better wages, shorter hours and all the other things which fill this foolish editor with horror.

The same wise editor, in his self-proposed task of destroying this newspaper and the ideas it advocates, goes on to say:

> "John C. Calhoun perverted Jefferson's party into the protector of human slavery. It was torn and trampled under foot and driven from power, to remain from power for twenty-four years."

An excellent statement, an excellent reminder. We accept it with thanks.

Yes, the Democratic party did suffer at one time when it was misrepresented as being the friend of black slavery.

AND THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY WILL SUFFER NOW, IF ITS FRIENDS ALLOW IT TO BE MISREPRESENTED AS BEING THE PROTECTOR AND THE ADVOCATE OF WHITE SLAVERY.

If the Democratic party is to be used by trusts, by Belmont and by Ryan and the wretched little corporation lawyers and bosses whom they hire to oppress the people, swindle them, overwork them and overcharge them, it will, indeed, be "trampled under foot and driven from power."

Our idea is to see the Democratic party take its proper place in the nation as the party of "popular rule."

There are plenty of Ryans, Belmonts, Sullivans, Taggarts, etc., only too eager to make of the Democratic party the protector and promoter of Trust slavery. But they won't succeed.

We'll be happy in this newspaper office if we call forth and merit no graver charge than that we desire to see men better off, happier, better paid, better housed, more cheaply fed and transported.

Little Editorials from the People

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION, SAYS PROFESSOR PARSONS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have recently returned from a journey through many lands which have lessons of progress of great value to teach the world—Switzerland, with her initiative and referendum which enable the people to exert a definite and continuous control over their government and make their chosen representatives real representatives instead of sham representatives or misrepresentatives, as is so often the case with us; Germany, with her magnificent public railways, the best managed system in Europe and absolutely free from discrimination, watered stock or politics; England, with her splendid record in city government and municipal ownership and her Co-operative Union, with over 2,000,000 members, 5,000 stores, multitudes of factories and $450,000,000 to $500,000,000 of business per year—but nowhere have I met with such vigorous evidences of rapid progress of the most vital character as I found on my return to America. Bryan has come out squarely for the nationalization of the railroads. Hearst and La Follette were already on that platform. So that now we have at least three great leaders committed to that fundamental reform as soon as political conditions can be made right for it. The American Federation of Labor has come out strongly for the use of the ballot by organized labor. That is the beginning of the end.

The Independence League movement in this and other States is also of vital moment. It crystallizes the thought of the people, breaks the fetters of false party ties and brings together for effective action all who believe in the basic principles it stands for—public ownership of public utilities, control of the government by the people through the initiative and referendum, popular election of Senators, etc., etc.

I wish the movement all success. We have little to hope for from either of the old parties. There is no real issue between them but possession of the offices.

The party that has the offices tries to keep them and the party that is out tries to get in. That is all. Many voters have acted more or less independently. For instance, I have voted for Bryan and for Roosevelt; for Douglas and Frothingham, and Moran, and expect to vote for him again this Fall.

But such individual action can accomplish little. We may now and then elect a good, strong man, but the Legislature is against him; he does not have the machinery back of him, and can only obstruct a little instead of achieving. What we need is organized independence that will elect enough men to accomplish positive results.

Such an organization the Independence League, with earnest and able leadership, bids fair to become. Those who are tired of helping party bosses and machines elect their favorites, dependents and co-conspirators to do their will instead of the people's will, and who want to join their votes with others who believe in liberal principles to elect men pledged to public ownership, good government and effective control by the people, will do well to give their support to the Independent movement, and take an active part in insuring its thorough democracy, broad gauge public spirit and steady adherence to principle.

Boston. FRANK PARSONS.

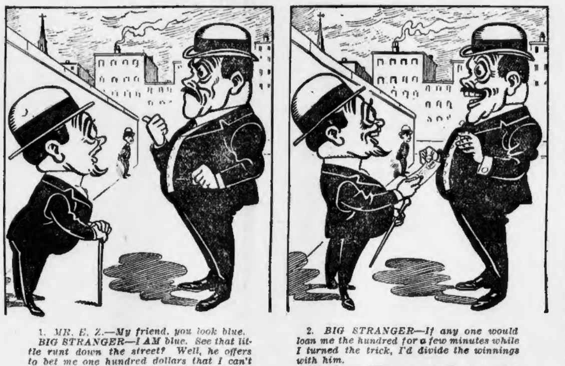
E. Z. MARK ASSISTS AT A BET

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

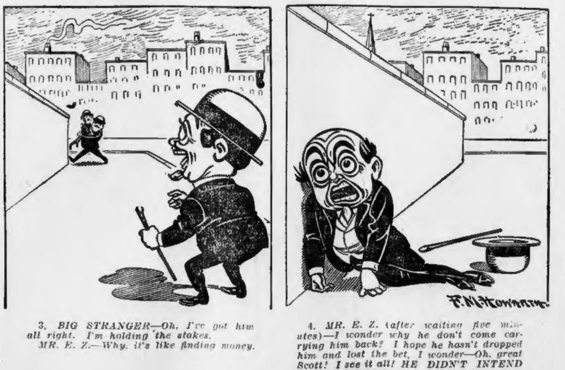


1. MR. E. Z.—My friend, you look blue.

BIG STRANGER—I AM blue. See that little runt down the street? Well, he offers to bet me one hundred dollars that I can't pick him up and carry him around the corner and back again. But I don't happen to have the hundred dollars about me.

2. BIG STRANGER—If any one would loan me the hundred for a few minutes while I turned the trick, I'd divide the winnings with him.

MR. E. Z.—Why, you could carry that midget with one hand. Say, here is a hundred; go, call his bluff.



3. BIG STRANGER—Oh, I've got him all right. I'm holding the stakes.

MR. E. Z.—Why, it's like finding money.

4. MR. E. Z. (after waiting five minutes)—I wonder why he don't come carrying him back? I hope he hasn't dropped him and lost the bet. I wonder—Oh, great Scott! I see it all! HE DIDN'T INTEND TO COME BACK! Ye Gods! I've been buncoed! I've been buncoed once more!

GOD'S ANSWER

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

AFTER a day of trouble and of care
I dreamed I talked with God about my pain,
With Sleepland courage daring to complain
Of what I deemed ungracious and unfair.
"Lord, I have grovelled on my knees in prayer
Hour after hour," I cried, "yet all in vain;
No hand leads up to paths I would attain,
No path is shown me out of my despair."

THEN answered God: "Three things I gave to thee—
Clear brain, brave will and strength of mind and heart—
All implements divine, to shape the way.
Why shift the burden of thy toil on Me?
Till to the utmost he has done his part
With all his might let no man dare to pray."

Bending the Young Idea

By Julian Hawthorne

A FRESH outbreak of Day—of Chancellor Day, that is, of Syracuse University—reveals a peculiar view of their ethical obligations on the part of some of the students at that institution.

These young persons, we are apprised, had been allowed to benefit by "scholarships" which relieved them from payment of college tuition fees. It was assumed, of course, that their pecuniary circumstances were such as to make the liquidation of such debts difficult or impossible. Instead of which (as Cicero used to say) they bought cigarettes, theatre tickets and (let us hope soft) drinks with the money thus saved, and guiltily caroused upon funds which, in honor and decency, should have gone into the pockets of their not-too-well-paid instructors.

Honor is the subject of this story. The morality of the case is precisely upon a par with that of the sturdy beggar on the high-road, who supplicates you for a nickel to save him from starving, and as soon as your benevolent back is turned squanders it in unnecessary rum.

But the beggar is a confessed outlaw, whereas the undergraduates of our universities are supposed to be exemplars of the gentle and honorable as well as of the studious life.

No one grudges generous youth its harmless "fling," but the conduct of these youths amounts to plain theft, of a particularly contemptible brand.

It had been more respectable to sally out on Syracuse streets and hold up the burghers. Where did they learn such rascality? Not in the university, and therefore they must have learned it—or, at any rate, not have been prevented from adopting it—in their own homes.

And this is not the first time that American parents have been convicted of neglecting to inculcate upon their children at home what are known as the homely virtues—which means the virtues upon which the whole structure of a secure civilization must be based.

Why are our politics so often rotten, our business methods questionable, our social relations vicious?

Where do our big and little thieves and scoundrels get their start? Must we seek the answer in the omission of American fathers and mothers to do their proper duty by their offspring?

If such be the fact, it is quite as menacing and deplorable as race suicide; and if the explosion of Mr. Day turns serious attention to it, we may forgive him for indiscretions that he has committed.

Notes by the Way

RED ink will be found an excellent coloring agent for tomato catsup. If used in excess, however, it is likely to induce writer's cramp.

Do not send ice by mail. Hot weather will melt it and the stamps will be wasted. Telegraph ice.

Rose leaves make a delicious salad. Use lettuce and tomatoes and French dressing. Place the rose leaves in a jar and keep them there until the salad is eaten.

In arranging cut flowers see that the blossoms are on top. A vase with the stems protruding is far from elegant.

Read some poetry every day. It will elevate you above the petty worries of the day. You can read it in the street car ads, on your way down to business.
